An Embarrassing Meeting

As Evelyn opened the post office to mail-man was just retying his bag preparatory to resuming his journey, and receiving directions from Mary Ann for the delivery of sundry parcels in 'Sweden' fir the mail-man acted as a means of communication between the two settlements. 'Here's a bundle from Mrs. McTavish for Mrs. Jensen makes the rag carpet, and that plough plant again the door is for Carl Swanson and this little parcel is for 'old man' Nelson—yes, that's all and Mary Ann held the door open for the mail-man's departure. No father does not want anything near ship from town she added decisively, for the mail man looked inquiringly at 'old Dawson', who was edging his way rather furtively towards the door with his cap in his hand, and Mary Ann closed the door sharply and turned towards Evelyn and shook her hands.

'I am sure I am very glad to see you, Miss Raye, though you find us all of a mussy-what with the work outside and the office and all, father's back is bad, so he says, and there's mother laid up with the bronchitis and not able to turn.'

'Oh, I'm so sorry, Miss-Dawson,' said Evelyn sympathetically; 'I hope your mother is not seriously ill—she is always so brisk and busy.'

'Well, when mother lays up you may be sure I'll not just fancy—she's one of the kind a'll work till they drop, she's not like some, Mary Ann added, with a suggestive, if unintentional, emphasis on the 'some.'

'How long has your mother been ill?' asked Evelyn as she laid down her cap and mail and took the chair

Mary Ann had drawn forward to the stove. It's a wonder none of the children told me at school—they generally know everything. 'Well, she has not been real well all Fall, and last week I was down at a neighbour's nursing for a couple of days, and mother took a chill, nobody, round it seems, so much as to put the cows in the stable and to milk them, or feed the pigs. I packed her off to bed, you may be sure, as soon as I got home, and there she stays till she gets the cold off her chest.'

'I'm sure she will be well looked after now, but did you send to the doctor, Mr. Dawson?' asked Evelyn of the latter, who having put on a pair of spectacles, was commencing to sort the letters and papers on the table.

'No, I didn't,' answered Old Dawson sulkily, for he was feeling rather sore for reasons of his own, 'common folks like us can't be sending for the doctor every day and paying him ten dollars to come and look wise. Mary Ann has been nursing other folks for ten year and sure she can mind the 'old woman' through a bit of a cold. I never send for a doctor, though my back is that bad these days.'

'Oh, never mind your back,' interrupted Mary Ann sharply. 'It's not the money, Mr. Raye, you say, I can do all that is to be done. I put a couple of mustard plasters—front and back—as soon as I got home, and she's had a flannel with some turpentine on her chest night and day since, and I always keep a drop of whisky in the house, where it's safe and she's doing real well. I'll not be leaving her alone to other folk's care—but she'll be real glad to see you if you can stay while I sort the 'lingle mail.'

'Well, you'd best be helping him. If it's to be done tonight—when himself can't do it—well, he's got to do it, alone writing.'

'Don't worry, mother, we will manage all right—and I'll come and tell you when you're all mail is ready, Miss Raye,' and Mary Ann left the room drawing to but not closing the door. Evelyn had visited too many querulous and rheumatic old villagers in her father's parish at home to feel embarrassed by Mrs. Dawson's rather grudging reception. She told her in an easy and quiet way such little news of the doings of the settlement as she herself had heard from the school children, and under her sympathetic influence in a little while Mrs. Dawson was giving her—between rather short breaths and fits of coughing—a detailed account of how she was 'tood with' the doctor. As this involved some severe strictures on the deficiencies of 'himself' in looking after the cows and the stables, Evelyn endeavoured to switch the conversation on to more kindly lines by asking if her minister had been to see her since she was laid up.

She was too wise to say, 'No, he's not, and it's not myself that would be sending for him. The last time they came round gathering for his salary, Samuel—that's my husband and grumbled at that. No, I'll never be sending, not if the Lord takes me with me.' Evelyn on the line of a Monday. Maybe the Lord knows I'm a sinner, but He knows I've never needed to be ashamed of the colour of my hair, and I'm not ashamed of my hair, and my house floor maybe is clean, than some of them 'ens as goes 'trapping to every 'vangelist meeting as comes along. The old lady relapsed from her energy into a fit of coughing which left her exhausted and choking for breath.

Evelyn leaned over her to try and catch the words the old woman was struggling to articulate between her coughs.

Evelyn fished the cup from the little stand by the window and gently raised her head and held the cup to her lips.

'Now, Mrs. Dawson, you must not try to talk any more or your daughter will think I am making you worse instead of better, and gently pressing her hand in farewell Evelyn stepped quickly across the floor and into the post office.

As Mary Ann was tying together with a piece of binding twine a bundle of letters and papers. 'There you are, Miss Raye, I was just coming for you I thought my mother might want to talk, if there's ever a body to talk to, but she'd be that vexed if I let you go without seeing her—but, there's some one just drove up to try door—maybe it's some of your folks and you'll get a drive home.'

'Oh, don't think so,' replied Evelyn quickly. 'My mother is gone. Good-by, again—and the boy would be looking at Evelyn opened the door. I hope your mother will soon be well and sent her to the threshold and to see Tom away.

'There now, I told you, Miss Raye,' exclaimed Mary Ann, with obvious dejection, 'I thought you'd say that. It's thing be more in keeping with the fitness of things.' 'Now, that's real cute of you, Mrs. Dawson, to guess how you would find the schoolmaster man and to bring the rig and all; it was just telling her as how it would be you and her and the rig and all. Evelyn and Bert were too mutually surprised and embarrassed for different reasons to catch the purport of Mrs. Dawson's remarks. They both glad too of a moment to regain their composure under cover of Mary Ann's chatter. Evelyn was the first to speak. 'I called and saw the schoolmaster as I came from school and then stayed to have a chat with Mrs. Dawson; I thought I should say and say you a trip. Good-bye, Mrs. Dawson, and then Bert, as he turned the buckboard so that he might get in, and said, 'Come by, my dear, and say hello to me. Well, I happened to be driving up from town and thought I would call on you. I called and saw the schoolmaster and the mare started off.

A very awkward and embarrassed meeting, it should be said, and turned into the town line, for in each mind there was a question clamouring for an answer—and a question which could not be answered by any wise implications. 'In betwixt mind, 'Has she heard of the burning of the house? Has Jack's trouble in town? If those confounded women of the place have heard, she knows it all and a lot more; and if she hasn't how am I, of all men, to tell her—she'd be kind to her, yet true to Tom.'

And in Evelyn's, 'Why is Bert here—why has he been to town—and why to-night, if all news is in the air, home with Tom's mare and no word of Tom or the threshing? I must know what has happened and what lies behind this business—I must know—but he must not dream why I must know.'

As always—the woman's courage to face the dreaded unknown was greater than the man's and the woman's intuition quicker to divine that it is self-revealing to question than to be questioned. Moreover, a woman guarding the secret of an unspoken and unacknowledged love is more inscrutable than the Sphinx and as unscrupulous as an Old Bailey lawyer.

'It's too bad that my benevolent intention of saving you a trip to town should have been spoilt after all, Mr. Bert, and Evelyn's voice was light and almost flippant, but you know it's your own fault, for you told last night that you were going threshing or something and would not be in till after dark—and I knew the girls would like to get the English mail.'

'Oh yes, I know I did, and it's very kind of you to let me say so. I did not wish to go, and Bert hesitated. 'Ah—did you hear any news at the office?'

'You can see—oh yes—'himself' has a lame back—but I'm afraid that isn't news—and poor Old Mrs. Dawson is ill—she's ill—that selfish old man won't send for the doctor, but oh—if you should see their minister I'm sure she would like to see him, though she won't seem to ask him, come because 'himself' is too mean to pay his share of the minister's salary. I suppose it was too windy to thresh to-day?—the last very carefully and in the face of a day-long mist! 'Or did the engine misbehave itself? I know Daisy says there's something was a threshing yet when she did not go wrong.'

'Oh, there was an accident at Bert's last night—no one hurt, you know,' added Bert hastily, and Jack Dennis went to town for some new teeth for the separator and—and—after he left—'Tom's spilt this mare of Lis' and Bert gave an irritated look to the being; 'she wants shifted to go on a tearing canter or else just to crawl!'

'Poor old thing—I expect she likes to have her own way. You were saying after Mrs. Hardie had all your 'Some stupid ass dropped a light near Bert's straw stacks—'

'And they burnt up—Or that's too bad!'

'Oh, that didn't matter—his grain was all safe—but—'

'Why, that's what you are almost as slow in telling me as Mr. Dennis's mare's walk.'

Poor Bert was desperate, and in his despair he uttered the inevitable 'Oh, how—'—beautiful typical of his sex in a tight corner—'I mistake that braced up Evelyn—she's protesting banting to the last notch. 'I'm slow in telling you because I hate to hurt you—because it hurts me to hurt you—the more spread to the Dennis and that could have sworn he felt a start and quiver in the form pressed so near to him by the narrow seat of the buckboard—' and then he spoke as steady and as inexpressive as ever.

'Oh, that's too bad, I'm so sorry—do you think I take my own time, Mr. Bert, for Bert was waiting for the reins. 'I suppose Mr. Jack will be more severe on the farm than here. So, now, I'll tell you all your hurry and early rising for nothing.'

Had the girl no feeling at all?—Bert was utterly lost at such a question as she asked, but it was purely a conventional sympathy—so it seemed to Bert who alternated between hot flashes of indignation and shudders of disloyalty as that surely was disloyalty they neared the Dingle, and nearly dark as they neared the Dingle, and Evelyn brought his tale to a conclusion. Agriculture To Buy 30,000 Alberta Cattle

As a result the present crisis in the cattle industry in Alberta where there has been a total failure of hay and other fodder crops, leaving, according to reports, approximately 150,000 head of cattle without food, the Manitoba department of agriculture has decided to purchase between 25,000 and 30,000 head for the farmers of this province.

Homestead Rules To Be Enforced More Rigidly Now

As a result of representations made to the minister of the interior by E. G. Hingley and W. J. Jackman, secretaries of the Saskatchewan and Alberta Union of Municipal associations, important changes are being made at once involving immediate action by the department as follows:
Notifying all occupants of crown lands held under homestead entry for five years or more that if patent is not applied for within a specified time the entry will be cancelled.

More rigidly enforcing the regular homestead and pre-emption, so that the occupant will be compelled to complete his duties within the specified time or lose his land.
Investigation of all school land contracts and if it found that the payments are in arrears the contract will be cancelled unless payment forthwith.

Dairy Produce, Market Report

The Dairy and Cold Storage Branch at Ottawa announces the inauguration of a Dairy Market Produce Report. A weekly market letter will be sent free of charge to any farmer or firm who asks to have their name placed on the mailing lists. This should prove of considerable assistance to farmers in deciding what their butter is worth, a great deal of dissatisfaction existing in many communities at present over the disparagement in the prices offered by dealers for first-class dairy butter and the prices quoted to the consumer in the city. Address letters to the Dairy Commissioner, Ottawa.

CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP—Jesus Christ came not only to save individuals from their sins, by bringing them in right relation to God the Father. His mission included, and perhaps, specially sought, the forming of a redeemed society. The bond of this society is Christian friendship at the close of this gracious letter to the church at Philippi, the aged prisoner-apostle expresses deep appreciation of their past and more recent kindness.

4: 11-20. GOLDEN TEXT—If we walk in the light, as He is in the light, we have fellowship one with another—1 John 1: 7

A Happy Family

In the New York City aquarium
there is what is called a 'happy family' in a wooden box, the bottom of which is covered with sand, there are a number of fiddler crabs from local waters, a dozen or more climbing
crabs, or land hermits, from St Kitts,
and a small diamond-backed terrapin from Georgia. Although these little creatures live happily together, they are each fed on different food, and their habits and natures are by no means all the same. Now is a Christian congregation like and unlike this group, with respect to food, habits and natures? Does the all-inclusive range of the Gospel's 'Come' increase the difficulty of achieving the church's unity? But fellowship with our Leader makes it possible.

STEEL SULKY RAKE JOHN DEERE SELF DUMP

Built entirely of steel and malleable iron. Steel frame braced by steel angle connections. Foot dump, foot trip and hand lever are connected so as to make operation easy. Strong wheels, steel axles, trussed rake head, proper cleaner fingers, adjustable seat—these are some of the main features. This is a rake that gives perfect satisfaction in the field. Write for folder.

JOHN DEERE-DAIN MOWER

Main frame is in one solid piece and will stand the most severe strain. Driving gears consist of but three pieces arranged in such a way that the thrust of one pair equalizes the thrust of the other pair so that all side wear and strain upon the bearings is eliminated. This construction gives smooth steady motion to pitman and does away with all end thrust in pitman. The extra long wood pitman has least possible angle and gives a powerful stroke. Adjustments are easily made in lining up bar or centering knife. Cutter bar mounted flexibly insures draft hitch permits the Dain mower to overcome all side draft. Write for folder.

The Old Man And His Three Sons

An old man had three sons who were always quarrelling with one another.
The father often tried to reconcile them and told them how foolish it was to quarrel; but his advice had no effect upon them.

So one day he called his three sons
and gave them a bundle of firewood, telling them each to try with all their might and strength to break the bundle of sticks into two pieces. Each tried without success for the sticks were so tightly and closely bound together that no man's strength was sufficient to break them.

Then the father untied the bundle
and told his sons to break the sticks one by one, which they were able to do quite easily. Then he said to them:

"See boys, how important it is to be long together. When you are united in the bonds of friendship, no one can hurt you; but if you quarrel and separate, people will be able to injure you."

UNION IS STRENGTH

An Acrobatic Trick

I placed a stool ten inches away from a wall. Then ask a friend to stand in front of the stool and lean forward till his head touches the wall.
Now tell him to catch hold of the stool by its two sides and lift it.
The stool is suddenly in an upright position without moving his feet, and it sounds very easy, but try it.

Introduction

Just about one half of the population of this district are women. Its time we woke up to the fact. Its the women who tend our homes, its the women who cared for the men when they were helpless weaklings, its the women who washed the little men, dried their tears, fed them and performed ten thousand services of love. Its the women, frail, pretty, and all that, that really are the backbone of the community—home, school, hospital, church, in fact from conception to the deathbed, more man is helpless without them.

Should not woman have one small portion of the Chauvin Chronicle to themselves? Why discuss this question—there's no question about it. During the past five years the local paper has been widening the scope of its columns and has devoted a regular place to agricultural interests and to the children, but the editor has been and still is handicapped by reason of his utter and total inability to offer adequate cash payment for the services of skilled writers, and furthermore, no matter what kind of old woman he may happen to be, he has felt entirely inadequate to the task of being able to give feminine expression on feminine subjects. Thus the lack of a ladies column in the local paper.

The Ladies Column in the Chauvin Chronicle will become a regular feature from this time forward. It is intended that in it will appear all kinds of information of interest to the ladies. This is made possible by the kind co-operation of the members of the Chauvin branch of the Women's Institute, whose name will appear at the head of this column each week.

CONTRIBUTIONS INVITED

As the purpose of the Ladies Column is to be of service, especially to the ladies of the district, it is desired that that our ladies will send in contributions to these columns, such as household hints, recipes, hints to save time, labor and money, etc., etc. Just make these columns a helpful and inspiring interchange of information and ideas.

USEFUL RECIPES

There is nothing more tempting to the appetite than good home-made bread.

FOUR HOUR BREAD AND BUNS

2 quart of water
1 Royal yeast cake.
1-4 cup of sugar

Preparation:—
Drain water from potatoes at noon, let cool until lukewarm, add sugar and yeast cake, keep warm in afternoon. Next morning warm and add two tablespoons of salt and enough flour to make a paste just stiff enough not to stick to hands or moulding board, knead a few minutes on board, let rise in a greased pan until 2 1-2 times its size, put in pans and let rise in pans 2 1-2 times its size and bake in a moderate oven.

Bread is improved by kneading don once or twice before putting in pans. If double or three times the amount of bread is required, keep potato water for two days or use two potatoes mashed to each quart of plain water added, and use two yeast cakes for large bakes.

BUNS WITH POTATO WATER

Put one tablespoon salt, 1-4 cup lard and butter, 1-4 cup sugar, 1-2 cup hot water in mixing dish. When butter is melted add, 1 quart potato water and proceed same as for bread.

RAISIN OR CURRANT BREAD

Make same as buns with the addition of fruit. May add a couple of eggs if desired.

1 quart potato water,
1 Royal Yeast cake
1-4 cup sugar

Prepare the same as for the white bread. Next day add 1 tablespoon salt, 1-4 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons of shortening, 1-4 cup of more molasses. Add white flour to batter stage and stiffen dough with graham flour. Finish up same as white bread.

NOTES ON BREAD MAKING

Important
1. A short method of bread making should be used by bread makers.
2. Yeast cakes should be kept in a cool place.
3. Always allow dough to rise 2 1-2 times its size.

when rising is in a pan of warm water.

4. A good place to keep bread warm

DOUGHNUTS (Are Easy to Make)

2 eggs
1 cup of milk
1 nutmeg
1-4 teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon melted butter
2 teaspoons baking powder
flour to stiffen

Preparation.
Beat eggs, add sugar and milk, stir until sugar is dissolved. Add melted butter, nutmeg and salt, then baking powder and flour enough to roll out. Cook well in hot fat, turn the doughnuts often and keep fat covered. Drain on wire sieve or tissue paper.

Note:—Properly made doughnuts are easily digested and nourishing.

(Further note:—The office boys say the last note is perfectly correct, and is prepared to demonstrate his capacity to digest them)

RYE RESISTS DROUGHT WELL

To the Editor,
Chauvin Chronicle,
Sir:—
It was most instructive and pleasing to read the article in your last issue headed "Rye Resists Drought Well" but I believe that it should be pointed out that most stock raisers and agricultural experts have found that rye is not a suitable feed for breeding stock as it is thought by many of them to induce abortion. For stock-ers however it is much better than wheat and in some sections, fall rye has been pastured on soon as it comes through in the spring and not allowed to head out. If the cattle cannot keep it down sufficiently to prevent heading the mower the mower is then run over it and it is then used as hay. By this means Fall Rye has shown good results for two or three seasons as astute. Taking everything into consideration, I consider Rye straw is much better straw for feeding stock than wheat straw—resists drought better and is apparently found more appetizing by the stock.

I believe it should be one of the feeds grown by all farmers especially in a district like that of Chauvin
Yours truly

AT THE TOP OF THE EARTH

In days no further back than five years ago, the glorious scenery of the Canadian Rockies in Central British Columbia, which has been opened up by the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, were reserved for the intrepid hunter or prospector and the native red man. Today this playground so expansive that distances do not describe it, is virtually at the door of the tourists, travellers, alpinists and sportsmen. This unspoiled wonderland may be penetrated to the very heart in luxurious modern railway trains. The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has issued a handsomely illustrated folder descriptive of a "Tour of a Thousand Wonders" through the Canadian Rockies—Mount Robson route, embracing Jasper Park, Mount Robson Park, the historic Skeena River country, the land of Totem Poles, so rich in history and romance, and embracing an ocean passage of 700 miles through protected waters of the "Inside Passage" of the North Pacific coast, from Prince Rupert to Vancouver, Victoria, and Seattle, on the steamships "Prince Rupert" or "Prince George" of the Grand Trunk Pacific Steamship Co. conceded to be the best, finest and fastest vessels in regular North Pacific coast service. A most interesting side trip from Prince Rupert to Anxox, B. C. is also described. Copies of this folder may be had on application to any Grand Trunk Pacific Agent.
